ARTIST STATEMENT

My work is a way to connect to and understand the world around me. I question ideas of sanctuary and vulnerability, embracing natural forms and forces while blurring the boundaries between abstraction and representation. Chance occurrences and serendipity come into play. I seek to show the uncertainty, brokenness, and fragmentation of what I see around me.

My paintings are meditations on organic structures and systems that have been altered by human intervention, focusing on forging positive connections, and advocating for stewardship of the earth's natural resources.
